It doesn't take much to attract a hiring manager, given the number of poorly written cover letters he or she receives every day. So make your job cover letter the best it can be and your will rise to the top of the pile. resume cover letters should include pertinent information about your experience, training, education, and interest in the specific position you're bidding for. Start your cover letter letter with a friendly greeting and your desire to be considered to fill the opening. And don't forget to ask for an interview where you can show your best assets in person.
